

What is Home Visitation?

Raising a child can be exciting AND challenging!

The first 1,000 days of life, birth to 3 years of age, is incredibly important as babies grow and change rapidly!

Parents are the most important person in their child's life.

Sometimes extra supports are needed. Home Visiting is provided for parents who are pregnant, have a newborn, or a young child.

HOW DOES PROMISE 1000 HELP CHILDREN & FAMILIES?

Experienced home visitors partner with Promise 1000 families by providing comprehensive supports, including:

- Strengthening families by addressing life's challenges
- Encouraging parent-child interactions that stimulate brain development and learning
- Increasing knowledge of child growth and development
- Providing tips on positive parenting practices
- Helping mothers to engage in their own health care
- Supporting child health and well-being by developing positive relationships between parents and doctors
- Linking families to beneficial community resources
- Connecting families to in-home services including therapeutic supports for maternal depression

It's easy to learn more!

Parents or Providers can make a referral online through Promise 1000.org or by phone through United Way.

Referrals can be matched with an agency of your choice or matched based on eligibility factors, such as: pregnancy status, age of child, location of family, and needs.
